Well last night's rain cleared most of the ice off the roads. It also left a lot of snow everywhere else so we have our white Christmas. I enjoyed Christmas lunch with Marge and Aunt Annie.

The family spent Christmas at Tonya & Jeremy's. I took a few pictures and I found out that my camera needs some work. Even with the flash the pictures came out too dark. I will have to work on that. I am not ready to buy a new camera right now.

Here are a few that turned out.

Betsy and Shawn: Betsy looks cold and Shawn looks very tired

Diane & Cork: Cork is laughing because he didn't know which camera to look at next.

Josh & Michaela: I don't think I had seen Josh this century. It was good seeing him. It was nice meeting Michaela.

As I said most of the pictures did not turn our very well. I guess we do not have to have picture to enjoy being with family. I know I enjoyed my time last night. Thanks Jeremy and Tonya for inviting me!

This picture had nothing to do with the flash not working right. It was a mistake I still thought it was a neat picture. Guess what it is.

Josh & Me: Josh is 30. Boy they grow up so fast. Source: Cork

Today I replaced both belts on the snow thrower. This time it cost me $38.00. That is about 10% of the cost of the snow thrower. I just got started installing them when Aunt Annie pulled in and I had to go for coffee. You know I just had to go, don't you? ©

After I returned I installing the new belts. It is all ready for the next snow. That would be about Wednesday and Thursday. I'm ready!

The Pilgrims

Well Mile and Petra are on their way again. Yes they are WalkingEast.com again. The only thing they are traveling north. ©

From Before My Time

Oliver Typewriter Company factory in Woodstock, Illinois around 1908. This was before Woodstock Die Casting was across the street from my house.

Today has been a nice sunny day. I like the sunny days in the winter. I do not really care for the cold that goes along with it but I can live with it.

Year at a Glance

I was just thinking since this will be the last issue of the year I should see some of the things I have noticed.

Birthday List

Do you know there are 144 events on my birthday list? Check and see if you are on there. If you are not on it then you should tell http://MartysRandomThoughts.com/Birthdays.html.

My blog

I started a blog but I haven't been updating it very much. I updated it a few times when I went on vacation and then there it sits. Yes I lost interest.

Windmill

I setup that wind turbine a few months ago and it waits until better weather so I can move it to the tower where there is a better chance for it to catch some air. That might be a better project for next spring.

Solar Panel

Though this is small it has been charging the electric trimmer and the electric lawn mower all year. Oh yea it also kept my camera battery charged too.

It is a little too small for much more during the growing season. I need to find a user for the extra power in the winter. Maybe I could use it to power the Christmas lights.

The Pilgrims

Mile and Petra started on their journey walking from California to Jerusalem on January 16th. They made it all the way across America before the end of the year. After taking a few days rest they started walking again from Lisbon.

If you want to keep up on their adventure you can read Mike's journal at http://WalkingEast.com

The Weather

Our weather has been much the same as always. Here are some of the stats from my weather station.

Vacation

I took a couple of road trips this year to hang out with and Mike and Petra while they were walking the country. The first time was in mid February and March in Arizona and New Mexico. On the trip home I stopped in Kansas and Iowa to do some visiting.

Next trip was to the Mississippi where I spent 2 days getting the new fuel pump installed in the motor home. Then I had a day trip down to Utica in the car. This trip was about 100 miles south of home.

On all of those trips I had a great time except for the repairs for the motor home.

Motor Home

In September I decided to rent out the motor home while wasn't using it. Later I decide to make it available for sell if someone wanted it. So far neither has happened.

Horses in town

In May they had a bunch of hand painted on horses on the Square for some reason. After checking them I found they were placing then all over the town for people to see and later they were a fund raiser.

I spent a lot of time finding and taking pictures of all 27 of these horses. I had a lot of fun finding all of them. When I was just about finished the fund raiser posted the locations. My job was done. And I lost interest.

Geocaching

In April I was checking out the parks in Woodstock and doing some Geocaching at the same time.

Geocaching is a kind of game where you hide a cache of things and use a GPS to get it location. Then you post it on the internet for other to find.

I did some searching and placed some caches. After a couple months I kind of lost interest. Maybe in the spring I will try it again.

The Year has Come to End

It is time to end this issue and the year. I will put a list of birthdays that you can post on your fridge or whatever you want to use it for.
